ABSTRACT This article proposes the design of a near fractional low order Bessel filter using various optimization techniques. The least square (NLS) and firefly (FF) are applied to the design of $(1 + \alpha)$ of low-pass Bessel filter order. The stability analysis was attempted for the proposed fractional order Bessel filter in W-plane to α ranging from 0.1 to 0.9 in the 0.1 range. The best optimization technique in terms of gain error, cut frequency and attenuation of the bite band is validated in Biquad. In addition, KHN Biquad was simulated using SPICE to validate filters of 1.2, 1.5 and 1.8 Bessel requests. MATLAB and SPICE simulated gain results, cut frequency and attenuation of the bite band were compared to the proposed Bessel filter. MATLAB's simulated magnitude response shows a large extent of proximity to the simulated magnitude response of the SPICE. The Monte Carlo analysis was also done in the SPICE environment. I have spreadsheets stored in Google Docs. I have documents stored in the box. And I have videos stored on YouTube. Which is great until I want to access these files when I'm offline. I could go to each site and download all my files until I accumulated an offline collection of my material. Or I could just turn to SocialFolders, a service that offers an idea that is so simple - it synchronizes the content you have on your social sites to your desktop - I have to ask myself why someone didn't think about it before.
